Scene 6: Epilogue/Henry's Final Greeting

Henry enters the kitchen for his normal morning routine. He only pours one cup of coffee and realizes what he did. He acknowledges his wife, Elizabeth in a new way.

Thank you to everyone who helped with the production of this musical drama. Special thanks to the singers, actors, youth, children, production crew, and those who helped build the set.

Thank you to Janet Biggs for serving as the actor stand-in during practice and for playing the role of Elizabeth in the family pictures. Thank you to Glenn Cox for his assistance with the candle scene.

We especially thank the audience for coming to and participating in our musical drama. We hope you enjoyed the performance as much as we enjoyed performing for you.

May you and your family have a very
MERRY CHRISTMAS!

Background:

This is the story of the Keagan family. Henry Keagan is approaching his first Christmas without his wife of many years. The other members of this close-knit family are struggling to accept the loss of their beloved matriarch. Henry’s children and grandchildren have decided that getting together for the holidays would help him deal with this difficult time. But, alas, family is . . . well . . . family. And with all the love comes a bit of annoying, hilarious, treasured behavior that keeps life interesting.

There is a great deal of humor in this drama, a trip to a soup kitchen, carolers at the door, and tremendously thought-provoking, spiritual insight.
